

ABSTRACT

A method and structure for a virtual finishing job ticket database used in a finishing system wherein the database stores capability and 5 constraint information relating to finishing devices available for a finishing job, receives information describing the finishing operations to be performed, and stores the information in a manner accessible for management of the finishing job.